of the use of computer viruses or any other irrespective of their origin, for the wrongful use of the Web Site by the User, or for security errors derived from the incorrect use of the terminal equipment employed by the User.

5. OBLIGATIONS OF THE USER

The User cannot, at any time, modify, alter or erase any data, information, content or element that are included within the Web Site.

The User must use the services that we put at its disposal in a diligent, correct and lawful manner. Under no circumstances can the User disseminate content or propaganda of a racist, pornographic or xenophobic nature, or which in general advocates the perpetration of criminal acts, violence or which are derogatory to individuals and fundamental rights.

The User cannot introduce software, viruses, malware or any other elements that are detrimental to computing systems that may damage or alter the devices or terminals of the company or of the rest of the Users.

The User shall be the only party liable for damages or losses that may arise from a breach of the conditions and obligations set forth in these Conditions.

The User is hereby prohibited from transmitting, including or disseminating advertising of itself or third parties through any medium available on our Web Site, without the express authorisation of the owners of the same.

6. HYPERLINKS

Any mention on the Web Site to other third-party websites is merely for informative purposes. The owner of the Web Site does not develop nor administer said Sites nor is the owner of the Internet addresses cited, unless this is expressly stated. Consequently, the owner shall not be liable for the content therein, nor for damages or losses derived from said access, nor for those generated by the services that they provide.

The owner of the Web Site authorises the establishing of links and hyperlinks from other web Sites. However, whoever wishes to establish a link between their website and the Web Site shall do so respecting the following conditions:

The web Site on which the link is established shall not contain information or content that is unlawful, contrary to morality, to good practices, public order, or any other third-party rights.

- It shall not declare nor imply that the owner of the Web Site has expressly authorised the link or that it has previously supervised, accepted or recommended in any form the services offered or made available on the website that establishes the link with the Web Site. Thus, those browsing the Web Site are advised to be extra careful in their assessment and use of the information, content and services present on the linked sites.
- The establishment of a link does not imply, under any circumstances, the existence of relationships between the
